

Media Release dated November 11th, 2020

PETER BREHM GmbH already thanked all its employees in October for their commitment in the Corona crisis and paid out a special corona bonus of 1500 euros. The trainees received 750 euros.

The pandemic has presented the medium-sized company specialising in endoprosthetics and spinal surgery with special challenges in recent months, which were mastered with the extraordinary commitment of all together. With this special payment, the management of PETER BREHM GmbH would like to express its recognition and appreciation to the employees and trainees for their outstanding performance under the special stresses of the corona pandemic. The currently worsening corona crisis continues to place great demands on the company and its employees.

"In 2020, our employees perform exceptionally well under difficult conditions and, like many others in society, often work at the limits of their ability to cope with stress. It is important for us to acknowledge the high level of commitment of our employees in the current exceptional situation. Social responsibility, even under difficult economic conditions, is a tradition at German family-owned companies and is an integral part of our corporate philosophy," said CEO Oliver Brehm.
